IV. Class Attendance and Homework Make-Up Policy:

1. Class attendance is necessary to acquire the knowledge required to _____

Course Number: _____
Semester / Session: _____

Course Title: _____
Start / End Date: _____

- a. Complete assigned coursework
- b. Receive a passing final grade
2. Students are responsible for _____
 - a. Ensuring that ALL coursework is completed according to directions
 - b. Submitting ALL coursework according to the scheduled due dates

This class meets at Clear Fork High School on Monday and Wednesday from 10:09 am – 10:54 am; however, the virtual classroom is available to all students 24/7. Students are given ample time for, and advance notice of all coursework; therefore, make-up work is not permitted. It is important that each student fully understands that make-up work is not permitted in this class. Requests for special chances to make-up work will be denied. In the case of extreme unforeseen and uncontrollable circumstances, such as the death of an immediate family member, student hospitalization, etc. make-up work may be considered only if proper documentation is provided.

V. Classroom Expectations:

Students are expected to pay particular attention to their writing skills, including tone. Comments should remain respectful and academic. “Text speak” is not considered college-level writing and is prohibited. Discussion boards, assignments, or papers with “text speak” will be graded at the same standard as any other college-level writing and points will be deducted for improper writing skills. Academic honesty and integrity are required. Respect is vital due to the controversial nature of some sociological topics. Disrespect, pejorative, derogatory, or harassing comments toward other students or the instructor will not be tolerated. Students must identify themselves by name and section number in correspondence with the instructor. Failure to do so may result in a delayed or no response.

“House Rules”

When I was in graduate school Professor Ridley had a classroom rule: No “sidebar” talking. Basically, a “sidebar” happens in a courtroom when there is a conversation that is discussed “on the side” between lawyers and their clients /among the judge and the lawyers which is usually very quick as not to interrupt the flow of the court session. During direct lectures and video presentations “sidebar” talking will NOT be allowed in the class, I will just stop lecturing/playing videos and wait until the talking stops. Also, I am referring to if you quickly say something to another student(s) because what I think is a FULL-BLOWN conversation with another student(s) might not be what you think is a FULL-BLOWN conversation. “Sidebar”-talking in the classroom is often distracting to other students who are listening to the information being covered by the instructor.

NOTE: During the semester, there will be visitors to our classroom. Theses visitors may be administration from NCSC or an individual(s) wanting to sit-in on a lecture. Therefore, if you notice a person(s) present that are not usually part of our class then it is expected that you will be engaged in the lecture by having your devices open to AND viewing the appropriate learning materials within the Canvas course.

The meeting day and time is set according to the class schedule but, I am given and can give a student(s) “some” flexibility when it comes to time. I do understand that because of a circumstance(s) a student(s) has (have) to leave class BEFORE the scheduled meeting time for the class to end; however, this can not be a regular occurrence EVERY week. Students are not granted permission to leave during direct lectures/video presentations UNLESS they have informed me of the reason. For clarification, I am NOT talking about if you tell me on a “couple” of days that you have an appointment and must leave early. I AM talking about if you leave early every/almost every day that the class meets without telling me a reason that you are not able to stay until the class has ended. Leaving during classroom activities is often distracting to other students who are engaged in the material being covered by the instructor.
